Self-motivated and self-taught Web-Developer seeking to secure an entry-level position. I have always found technology interesting and always wondered how the Internet works. I was introduced to coding through Youtube. Since then one thing led to another and I have never stopped learning whether it's through crash courses on YouTube or full courses on Web Development through Udemy.

I'm a fast learner and aren't afraid to try new ways of doing things. I can quickly integrate into a team so I can provide value to the company. Throughout my years in the US I have learned to adapt to the constantly changing work environment.
